Jim:

Attached is my article for the November 2024 issue of the BLHS Bulletin: BLHS D&H Bibliography, 2018-2024, of S. Robert Powell.

My 2012 Chevrolet Colorado pick up truck finally gave up the ghost (three weeks ago), and I am now the happy owner of a 2022 Buick Encore Sport Touring car (at a good price, and with only 15,000 miles on it; see attached photo). "Push-button keys" and about a hundred mysterious buttons and gauges and dials. It's gonna take a while for me to learn what all those buttons and gauges represent. Live and learn!

Best,

Robert

I continue to be amazed by the breadth and depth of your contributions. Truly amazing.

I am surprised that your Colorado died so young; I hope that road salt wasn't the problem. After suffering from the effects of three Land Rover "Discos", we have been much happier with our Toyotas. My FJ Cruiser is a 2007, and after 120,000 miles, the only problems have been caused by the effects of road salt. Barbara's Highlander Hybrid is a 2009, has about 60,000 miles, and is going quite strong. They have come in handy in cleaning out -- or more accurately, attempting to clean out -- my mother's house.
